The Christmas services heid in three of the local churches Sunday—Congregational, Methodist and Baptist—were not as well attended as they would have been had the weather been as favorable as that of Christmas day. The congregations were good, however. The musical programmes were carried out, and excellent sermons were delivered by the pastors on the birth of the Savour.

Christmas day in Willimantic on the local thoroughfares had every appearance of a Sunday, especially during the afternoon. The only places doing business was the markets and a few grocery stores and barber shops, which kept open until 11 a.m., and only a few places such as candy and cigar stands did business in the afternoon and evening Services both morning and evendid business in the afternoon and even-ing. Services both morning and even-ing at the local churches were well at-tended. The real hard work of the day fell to the lot of the early milkmen, and the already tired out postoffice and express company employes, the latter trying hard to reduce the increasing loads that came on every train to con-signees all over the city. The exsignees all over the city. The express companies had extra help and all worked hard. The public entertainment attractions were few and included a basketball game at the new armory, a show at Loomer opera house called Mysticland, a social at Washburn hall and moving picture shows at the Bijou and the Scenic. All were well patronized.

Good Cheer at Hospital.

Christmas at St. Joseph's hospital was a day of good cheer for the patients. There were no serious cases, so that all enjoyed the day. There were about 35 patients on the hospital roster early in the week; nine of them, however, recovered in time to go to their homes Christmas eve, so that the number there now is normal. The corridor, main hallways and wards were nicely decorated with streamers of green—holly, smlax and flowers—by the flower committee. The delicacy committee of the ladies' staff connected with the hospital during the week efcommittee of the ladies' staff connected with the hospital during the week efforts in the community was well rewarded as many baskets and hampers of food, choice viands, fruit, jellies, etc., were left at the hospital Christmas eve for the patients and working corpa connected. At the Town Farm.

Christmas day at the town farm was a pleasant one for the 32 immates, 17 men and 15 women. Supt. Henry H. General work was dispensed with for the day and in the evening a fine turkey and poultry dinner was served to the inmates, everything coming from and raised on the place. At 7 p. m. there was a general good time, an entertainment of speechmaking and music being furnished by some of the inmates who have considerable talent. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain were awarded a vote of thanks by the inmates at the close.

At the Center street bowling alleys on Christmas morning a local trio was given a trimming at duckpins by a three-man team from Norwich. As no announcement had been made that the match was to be rolled, only a small number was present to see the sport. The visitors won by a margin of an even 160 pins. They had it on the Danielson boys all the way and there was little opportunity for the fans to get real enthuskastic over the happenings on the alleys. Sturtevant did the real classy work of all that was shown in the match, which was not the best that the men were capable of doing. Metthe of the Danielson team made the second best showing. The visitors brought some composition balls and the use of these probably helped increase their score.
